Conciliation Impossible
BERLIN May 5 —Bismarck has gone to Frankfort to meet Favre
All attempts at conciliation are fruitless

A Golden Harvest in Prospect for Oregon.

It is a settled fact that the grain crop of California this year will fall much below half the average yield. In many localities it is a total and disastrous failure. In few places except the narrow districts immediately along the coast will there be anything more than the scantiest yield. This is now conceded by the California press. The Sacramento Union in its issue of the 28th April gives a long article under the heading,—"Close View of the Grain Crop—Results of the Failure." After considering the prospects in the several counties in detail, the Union says: "There is still hope left that in the aggregate the yield may reach a third of a crop for the whole State,—say 7,000,000 bushels." This seems to be the most hopeful view which the Union's extensive information, collected from every quarter of the State, will justify. "This yield," says that paper, "would feed us and furnish seed for next year, but allow no margin for export. Many farmers who are in debt will be totally ruined and forced to sell their lands for whatever they can get, and many people who have just come to that State will be driven from it by the unpropitious prospect before them. We add the following from the Union's article:

> The failure will bear heavily on most of the farmers in the great valleys, and ruinous on all those who were much in debt and dependent on their crops to pay out. The price of flour is not likely to fall below its present price for another year, unless Oregon does a good deal better than she has yet done. Should that State have a surplus of four or five million bushels, our prices may be brought down a little, but not much, considering the active demand there will be in France and England for breadstuffs, and the other fact that Germany will not produce as much surplus as usual.

So far, the season has been most favorable in Oregon. Prospects for a bounteous harvest have never been better. Our farmers will see by these reports from California that there is every probability of a good market for our coming crop. There are many localities in this valley where spring wheat might still be sown and yield largely. On the bottom lands along our streams we have often known spring wheat, sown as late as the middle of May, to yield well. There are thousands of acres that might still be sown, and the result would be a good crop with large profits. It is worth while for those who have land that will bear it, to sow grain yet. For unless all portents are worthless, wheat will bear a price during the next year which will not only remunerate the farmer, but bring him in larger profits than he has obtained at any time for a number of years.

It is not improbable that the failure in California may be even more complete than now estimated by the journals of that State. Under drying winds and a scorching sun fields wearing a promising look often wither in a week, and yield no grain. The Oregon farmer may now realize the advantage of his situation. Here the drought, great scourge of farming industry, never seriously affects the harvests. Here even partial failure of crops is unknown. The result of the present situation will be advantageous to Oregon in a double sense. Not only is there every prospect that the State will derive great immediate profit from the coming wheat crop, but there is a still more important and valuable prospect of advantages to be derived from the flocking hither of large bodies of people who, disappointed of the fruits of their industry in California, will be disposed to come to Oregon where the climate and soil are such that the harvest always follows the seed time. Do the farmers sufficiently comprehend the superiority of their advantages? Do they who complain of Oregon's climate ever reflect that they could not afford to exchange climate, location and general advantages with any State of the thirty-seven?

The "address" recently issued by the Democratic members of Congress, the New York Post says: "Had they said nothing, their action would still have believed that the Democratic party has learned something the last few years, and that sound principles of government have some chance of regaining an ascendency over it; but this address destroys that belief, and proves that, as a party, its principles are still the same as in 1861—a disloyal faction, reckless in opposition, and not to be trusted with power." The Post is a strong free-trade paper, and has of late been criticising the Administration with bitterness, thus affording Democrats much delight. They have been counting upon it as an ally; and one that would send a large force of "moderate Republicans" into the Democratic ranks. Oregon Democratic papers have often quoted from its columns. They are welcome to what comfort they can get from the above extract.

The litigant organ has done a little advertising for the city of East Portland and sent in a bill of $127 50 therefor. The Board of Trustees deemed the bill a rascally one, and cut it down to $63. Now comes the Herald complaining of their action and says that its charge was only half what the litigant law allowed. Had it charged at "litigant rates" its bill would have been $253. Could anything more completely illustrate the swindling character of this enactment, which the Herald is forging with the plunder it affords, declares is the best and most necessary law ever made in the State?

The OREGONIAN calls the Chicago Times and Louisville Courier-Journal "Democratic papers." If these are Democratic papers the Democracy were better off without "Democratic papers."—Eugene Guard.

The Times recently spoke disrespectfully of Jeff Davis and declared that he was not a representative Democrat. That, in the eyes of the Guard, is its sin. The Courier-Journal recently denounced the Ku Klux. That is its offence. For thus going back on "Democratic principles" those journals are thus read out of the party.

The newspaper to be published at Kalama will be called the Beacon. The first number will appear in about a week. As already announced, W. B. Daniels, Esq., will be its editor. The Beacon will be a twenty-eight column paper, published semi-weekly, and will be furnished at five dollars a year. At present the field is a rather narrow one for such a journal, but it is rapidly widening, and industry and ability will doubtless make the enterprise a successful one.

It is stated that the Herald "fellows" have telegraphed to "Boss" Tweed, who is supposed to be now in San Francisco, an invitation to come up here. No doubt they want the instructions which the "Boss" can afford in the best and most effective methods of political jobbery, legalized swindling, litigant bills and charges, and all that sort of thing.

The Example of New York

Inasmuch as the Democratic party is incessantly protesting about excess of taxation and extravagance of expenditure, we might naturally look for them to furnish an illustrious example of economy in the great State of New York, whose population and revenues far exceed those of any other State of the Union. We might expect them to rebuke by contrast in New York that alleged recklessness of taxation and prodigacy of expenditure which they condemn at Washington. But what is the fact? For several years New York has been completely under the control of the Democratic party. While reduction of taxes and retrenchment of expenses is the order at Washington, an unprecedented increase of both is the rule in New York. The increase in the rate of taxation for carrying on the government of that State is so rapid as to be positively alarming. The State tax this year will be eleven mills on the dollar, which is nearly double what it ever was under Republican rule. The public money is squandered with a prodigality never before dreamed of. All the principal cities in the State are under Democratic control, and municipal taxation is increasing even more rapidly than that of the State. Municipal debts are increasing in like ratio. By the new tax levy bill, Tweed and his fellow thieves are authorized to collect from the city of New York $50,000,000 for this year and $25,000,000 yearly thereafter, and are also empowered to issue bonds amounting to many millions, which the Ring may sell at any price they choose. While the debt of the General Government, under Republican management is rapidly decreasing, that of New York is increasing at the rate of $10,000,000 a year. While national taxation is being steadily reduced, taxation in New York is rapidly increasing. Yet who so blatant in denouncing "Republican financial mismanagement" as these very thieves who are plundering the people of New York and squandering their revenues? The country may well take warning from this Democratic example. If that party succeeds in the next election, this New York system will be transferred to the National Capital and the whole country will be robbed and plundered as the people of New York now are. The corruptionists are able to do these things in that State with impunity, because by means of the money thus wrung from the people they are able to control the miserable rabble of the great cities, perpetuate gigantic frauds in elections and keep themselves perpetually in power. One of the great questions now before the country is,—shall this system become national? Shall New York corruption and New York profligacy be introduced as a national system? Once give the corrupt ring that has its headquarters in New York and controls the Democratic party of the United States, the mastery in the nation, and it never could be dispossessed of the Government but by another civil war. It could not be voted out by a majority of two to one of the American people. The direct tendency of its operations is to overthrow popular government, and such will be the result if it is not kept out of power.

Southern Democrats Declare their Position.

And now comes the Southern Democratic press responding to the New York World's advice to "Southern Impracticables." That paper had addressed its Southern friends on the folly of appealing from the results of the war and campaigning in 1872 against the constitutional amendments. They respond defiantly and declare they will not accept the "situation" as it is. The Mobile Register points to the measures which the World would have them accept, or at least be silent about till after the election, and pointedly asks: "Are these Radical or Democratic platform planks? Can you count the tens of thousands of white men who will spurn the ticket if you taint it with negro politics?" The Register then goes on as follows:

> We retort, then, on "Northern Impracticables," like the World, who persistently close their eyes to this great power of race instinct, who reject a law that God has imprinted on the hearts of all men, and prefer to cling to false and glittering expediences as the watchword of victory. The World is without faith. It is in the bramble-bush of unbelief. Armies, religious, military or political, are never led to victory by unbelievers like the World. It is afraid of its own cause; afraid of the very truths it is most profoundly grounded in. How can there be inspiration—the feu sacre of triumph—in the counsels or leadership of such a journal?"

There is some truth in all this;—and yet it is perfectly certain, as the World asserts, that the Democratic party can never win with the policy which the so-called "Impracticables" would force on the party. The dilemma is one from which that party cannot extricate itself. If it does not pronounce against the results of the war and attempt a new revolution, it will lose the support of the tens of thousands of so-called "Impracticables;" if it accepts the platform of the "Impracticables" it will cause all patriotic men to combine against it, and defeat is certain. In either event the party will be overwhelmed.

The Montgomery Mail also denounces the policy of acknowledging the results of the war as settled, and says: "What if we so shape public sentiment everywhere that the World and its followers will be in the minority in that (the next Presidential) Convention? And that is just what we are laboring to do—nothing more, certainly no less." It continues its argument thus:

> The great national objection to the Fifteenth Amendment lies in the fact that so long as it occupies a place in the Constitution of the United States it is a standing admission on the part of the whole people that the bayonet may be rightfully used in overthrowing the "old landmarks" of popular and free government. Can the World see no danger in that admission not worth, at least, an effort to escape from? And who is left to make that effort if not the Democratic party?

Northern Democrats of the policy stamp may try to think these questions; but the Democratic vote of the South can be obtained only upon the terms indicated in the above quotations. If, then, a Democratic President should be elected, what would it mean? It could mean nothing less than a surrender by the country of every principle contended for during and since the war, and the reopening of every question supposed to be settled by the termination of the contest. "Once let Republican rule be overthrown," says the New York Times, "and we shall find ourselves dealing afresh with the worst of the problems which confronted us ten years ago. No concession to the South that we can possibly make will reconcile the people to the destruction of the only political ideas which ever had any degree of vital force among them."

Democratic papers are loudly denouncing "the Ku Klux infamy." Let not the reader misunderstand, though. It is not the outrages committed by the Ku Klux that they complain of. Not by any means. It is the Congressional legislation to prevent those outrages that receives their displeasure.

The Northwestern Stage Company have petitioned to be allowed to carry the mail from Winnemucca on the old route to Owyhee, instead of the Elko route, as at present.

AMUSEMENTS.

SKATING RINK —The pavilion on Fourth street was formally opened to the public on Saturday evening and dedicated to the elegant and fascinating amusement of parlor skating There was a gay and festive throng present, who enjoyed a genuine gala evening The place will be open this morning from 10 till 12, and this evening from 8 till 10 o'clock

BOSCO'S SOIREES —Mr Carl Bosco had very full houses Friday evening, at Saturday matinee and Saturday evening—a fact that attests strongly his superior accomplishments as a magician

GOOSE RACE AGAIN POSTPONED —Mr Cooke had everything ready yesterday morning for his goose race, except the weather, and that was a "circumstance beyond his control" In short, the weather was bad and the voyage in a tub had to be again postponed

VIEUXTEMPS CONCERT —The third concert of the Oregon Musical Institute came off Saturday evening; The performances of the pupils were generally satisfactory and indicated good progress in the study of the fundamental principles of music The programme was however, much too long, and many of the audience retired long before the close of the exercises

Banty Tim

BY ORPHEAN

Remarks of Sergeant Tim on July 19 to the White Man's Committee of Spunk, Point, Illinois]

I reckon I got your drift, gents—
You 'low the boy shan't stay
This is a white man's country,
You re Democrats you say
And wherens as I seein', and wherefore,
The times bein all contrary,
The nigger has got to mosey
From the limits o Spunky Point

Le reasons the thing a minute
I'm an old fashioned Dimocrat too
Though I laid my politics out of the way
For to keep till the war was through
But I come back here, allowin'
To vote as I used to do,
Though it gravels me like the devil to tram
Along o sich fools as you

Now dog my cats of I can see,
In all the light of the day
What you ve got to do with the question
If Tim shall go or stay
And furder than that I give notice
If one of you tetches the boy
He can check his checks in a warmer clime
Than he ll find in Illanoy

Why blame your hearts, just hear me
Do you know that tragedy day
When our left struck Vicksburg Heights how ripped
And torn and tattered we lay
When the rest retreated I staid behind,
For reasons sufficient to me—
With a ribcaved in, and a leg on a strike,
I sprawled on that cursed glacee

Lord' how the sun went for us.
And bri led and blistered and burned
How the rebel bullets whizzed round us
When a cuss in his death-grip turned
Till along toward dusk I seen a thing
I couldn't believe for a spell
That nigger—that thing—was a-crawlin to me
Through that fire proof, gilt edged hell

The rebels seen him as quick as me,
And the bullets buzzed like bees
But he jumped for me, and shouldered me
Though a shot brought him once to his knees,
But he staggered up, and packed me off
With a dozen stumbles and falls,
Till safe in our lines he dropped us both
His black hide riddled with balls

So my gentle gazelles, that's my answer,
And here stays Banty Tim
He trumped Death's ace for me that day,
And I m not g n back on him
You may rezolout till the cows come home,
But of one of you tetches the boy
He ll wrastle his hash to-night in hell,
Or my name s not Tilmon Joy'

Railways—Advantages and Damages

BARLOW'S PRAIRIE, May 1st, 1871

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN

SIR—I see in the local column of the OREGONIAN of recent date, an article headed, "Suit Against the Railroad, Wm Barlow vs Oregon and California Railroad Company" It should have been, "The O. & C. R R Co. vs Wm Barlow." Now I ask the privilege of correcting some gross errors in that article I am as much of a railroad man as the OREGONIAN, Mr Holladay, or any other man." But I don't believe in robbing Peter to pay Paul. The article says "We know nothing of this particular case, but as a general thing the lands along the railroad line have been enhanced in value, after taking into account all damages by the building of the road" Now so far as Clackamas county is concerned, it is not the case, unless it should be some important town site like the city of Multnomah. Let us see how it benefits Clackamas county

The road in its course through this county, runs right along a river that is navigable the year round It totally destroys our county road from Oregon City up the river, as everybody knows It shuts off the trade and travel of this whole section of country by the wagon route, or forces it over the high mountain hills There is not a man along the road to-day but who would rather lose money than he would have seen the railroad was built, unless it was the Barbers of Barberville, and Lee and Scott who have depots or stations on their claims I heard one man say he would take a hundred dollars less than he was offered for the railroad was built Here is a chance for bargains for those who want railroads through their farms, and if any one of the gentlemen may farm he can have it for what the improvements would cost. Not what they are worth, but just what it would cost to make the improvements to-day. The only way the railroad could have really benefitted Clackamas county would have been by the establishment of depots at Molalla and Pudding rivers, but those places the company ignored, and placed the depot where it has no advantages for them and confers no benefits on the people over those already afforded by steamboat navigation. Whose mistake this was I can't say, I only know to whom it is charged by all I hear speak of it. What was the strongest argument the counsel made to show benefits against damages in the suit of the Company vs Wm. Barlow? They even went so far as to make a map of all that section of country between Molalla and Pudding rivers, showing the mountains, to show the certainty of depots being placed between those rivers, and against damages which were asked, and more too, as against benefits for we even went so far as to offer donations in the way of land, right of way and all damages accruing therefrom for a depot or station on the premises and we never brought any suit against the company, but waited patiently for them to make some offer in the way of settling against damages, for we had made up our minds Finally they came out with the generous offer of two hundred dollars for the land taken and thirty dollars for timber destroyed outside of the sixty feet But the timber they made no mention of in the complaint, as they admitted they had a right to go beyond the sixty feet, and that it was an act of trespass for which they were liable for damages; and also valuable and ornamental walnut trees, flooding land, for which they were liable for trespass They allege that two hundred dollars was the full amount of damages over and above benefits They failed to show a single item of benefit, only that land had advanced within a short time two or three years all over the country But their main witness, who lives on an adjoining land, (Mr. Kurts,) would not swear through land had raised all over the country that he would give one dollar more for it than he would before the road was built They did, however, have one witness who said if the farm was his he would sell it for a thousand dollars, (if he could get the money how quick we would trade,) at the same time he was willing a few weeks before to allow five hundred dollars damages for the same. None one that said he did not consider himself damaged any, but if he could locate the same in a different way across the farm he would rather have it by one hundred per cent than to be benefitted. On the other hand, we had damages from one to two thousand dollars leaving out everything that they claim it should not enter into the suit, and must be settled it by the best practical farmers and business men of the country

Now for the great rise in land all along the road, doubled, trebled and quadrupled," says the article. Now we happen to know something about this country and we speak whereof we do know While land has advanced along the line of this road in some places, in other places it has not advanced one cent in the last twelve or fourteen years W C Dement paid for part of the McCarver farm sixteen years ago fourteen or fifteen thousand dollars. It sold five years ago for five thousand dollars, and the man has been improving it ever since, and he would sell it to-day for less than he gave, I have no doubt, and the balance of the place is now in Mr Warner s hands for sale at four dollars an acre, and that is right by the railroad I sold 40 acres of smooth prairie, without any improvements, fourteen years ago, for one thousand dollars in gold coin, to James M Partlow, now of Portland, and the same piece of land has been sold three or four times since for the same price, and it would not bring one more cent to-day, with the railroad running right by it without damaging it in any way But when wheat would bring one dollar a bushel on this prairie it was only worth fifty cents higher up the valley So you can easily see how one portion of a country can be benefitted and another one damaged This we don t complain of, it is fairplay and equal rights But we do complain of destroying one man s property and not paying him for it, because you have benefitted some other man away up the country or at East Portland. Even suppose that it has advanced every man s land all over the country, and suppose that the railroad was the sole cause of that rise, what has that to do with the question? Has not one citizen as much right to that benefit as another? You run through one man s farm and damage at one, two or three thousand dollars, according to the size and the way you run through it, but because you have enchanced the balance of his land you give him nothing, while his neighbor s land is enhanced equally as much, and he pays the railroad nothing Surely, the laws don't mean to make any distinction between citizens Individual damages and individual benefits is what the law means, nothing more and nothing less The Government gives large subsidies to these private corporations to enable them to pay her citizens for private damages. This is no public highway that every man has a right to use They can stop a footman from walking along the road and have stopped them now from crossing the Molalla river or going along the trestlework, and the newsboy has been stopped or at any rate he has stopped throwing off my DAILY OREGONIAN since the lawsuit, for which I was paying him half a dollar a month I am just as much of a railroad man now as I ever was, and have no personal feeling against any member of the company To be sure I have had a lawsuit with the company, and did not get over one third as much damages as I honestly thought I should have and I don't blame the company, the counsel or the jury They did perhaps what they thought was right "Many men have many minds." But I do believe that if Mr Holladay would come up here and examine the whole premises, and could place himself right in my situation, take the map showing how the place was mutilated, see the necessity of moving barns to get a field in shape to cultivate, and danger of fire by straw being thrown out next to the road, cutting off one side of the farm from stock water, extra labor in cultivating three cornered pieces of land, overflowed land caused by no drains being put in at low places or ditches dug to carry off the water, danger of risking a boy in the field with a team to plow, harrow or do any thing, obstructing outlet to public road, destroying valuable trees and waste land caused by the same, the great destruction of timber by chopping and fire and the value of that timber in its present location to the river for saw logs,—all of which if he or any other honest man would take into consideration, I believe he would say the damages were three times the amount I got.

As to the company not putting a station or depot at this point, they hurt themselves a great deal more than they hurt the people The people in this city are no closer to market than they were before, and the company lose what we will save by hauling our own freight, though it does take us some longer to get to town with our produce Besides we can go to the river just as we always did It is just as close as the depot, and they are always glad to stop anywhere for freight or passengers So, as there are no bones broke, we will let the matter drop right here With my highest wishes for the prosperity of the whole country and the welfare of every body, I subscribe myself, Fair Play and Equal Rights, which means,

WM BARLOW

CURRENT NOTES

Steam road wagons are now running in British Columbia, on the road to Cariboo. The first steamer started on the first trip on the 21st of April Landing 20,000 pounds too light a load, it returned for more wagons

The Golden Age says, editorially "President White was personally much more convinced of San Domingo than he allowed himself to appear in the official report. In private conversation he speaks with eloquent enthusiasm of the country, and wants it annexed to the United States"

In view of the distinguished rank of the Czarowitch of Russia, who visits the United States in June next, the Navy Department is already making preparations to receive him in a becoming manner. Several vessels will be sent out under the command of Admiral Porter to receive the Russian fleet, and a formal reception will be given him.

Hoosac Tunnel, Massachusetts, which has here to fore been so fruitful th accidents, was recently the scene of a most frightful tragedy During a thunder storm a ball of electricity struck the ground near the entrance, and, following the iron rail into the tunnel, exploded several charges of nitro glycerine, blowing four workmen into hundreds of pieces, and fearfully injuring two others.

We are reminded of the very respectable age of the American press by the lately announced death of Mr John Saxton, of Canton, Ohio. The Ohio Repository, which he started in 1814, is greatly exceeded in age by sundry New England journals But it certainly stands alone in having been managed for fifty seven years by its founder. The man who could, as Mr. Saxton did, reproduce from his files of fifty five years ago, the account of the surrender of the first Napoleon at Waterloo, as a companion picture of the surrender of the third Napoleon at Sedan, was not only the veteran of the American press, but a link between two great historical eras, and an emphatic reminder of how fast the world travels.

The Herald, we observe, prints the jeremiad of the Democratic Congressmen, denominated an "Address to the People," and gives it a sort of approval But the address does not at all please the Cincinnati Enquirer, the leading central organ of the party It complains that it is wanting in vigor, and energy of expression, and is too much after the style of an ordinary political address to have much influence upon the public mind.
